"It is unfortunately common for men who have committed domestic abuse to present themselves as the "victim" when nothing could be further from the truth.' "

Go fuck yourself Amber.

I saw her when she was asked about clocking him, and she hesitated, ate something, and there was whispering in the background.

She didn't want to answer the question straight at all. She tried to argue that Johnny was hitting her at the time, too.

She tried to debate and dodge her way out of this question, and it speaks of her low character.

I hope she gets a really bad case of Coronavirus. What a scumbag.

What does 'clocking' mean?

SimpleQuantum • 2 points • 18 March, 2020 06:36 AM

Punches him in the jaw really fucking hard

And he didn't fight back?

virtualzircon • 2 points • 18 March, 2020 09:04 AM

Of course not, hes a victim. He would have hurt her or killed her had he fought back. I don't think anybody would blame him though, itd be a good wakeup call for her.
