Coronavirus isn't even particularly deadly. Previous pandemics were Smallpox (A horrible disease that everyone banded together to eliminate), the Spanish Flu (Don't know much about but it apparently provoked your white blood cell production into maximum overdrive clogging veins killing you), and the Black Death (A destructive disease of eastern origin that depopulated Medieval Europe that seemed to have went away when hygiene improved).

Men are far more likely to be assaulted by strangers than women are. This myth that women are constantly at risk in public is as bad as the wage gap myth.

Birds are much more likely than humans to be killed by a predator. Yet people are going to try and protect humans much more than birds.

Feminists view is that men's safety is irrelevant (but they still claim men and women should be equal).

Myth might be a bit hyperbolic, as if to say that it is actually impossible for something like that to happen to women, as it definitely does. The thing is I think men are just targeted more (If I were to guess why is that they may have more on them to steal or it could be a lot more personal like revenge just a guess though) which is what the feminists believe but reverse.

I wonder if they have tried to counter that argument by saying that it is because that more women have been more careful about walking out in the middle of the night than men are. How would you respond to that?

Feminism: making everything about “me” including a global pandemic.

Feminism: wanting all the advantages and none of the disadvantages

This is like boomer humor dressed in millennial clothes. It's so cringe.

VestigialHead • 13 points • 14 March, 2020 05:55 AM

I agree with the cringe look to it. But it is still showing a real issue with women exaggerating all problems so everything is about them.

check out r/gendercritical

"women are the primary victims of coronavirus even though men die more and get sick more"

Edit: After reading about all the stupid stuff that they say I would recommend checking out there dictionary as it's biased and funny

I for one am hoping that if there can be anything good coming out of the pandemic, the feminists and the rest of the SJW brigade will shut up for a while because now there's a real problem to worry about, not their petty -isms and imaginary microaggressions

Zhyttya • 4 points • 14 March, 2020 10:25 AM

Those idiotic feminists. If I had an insta and had seen that post, I'd be playing the victim role and say "welcome to the world of anxiety, where being a man or a women doesn't make a diff at all. Welcome to my world where you suffer constantly for your health". What a brainless idiot that made that post ☐ from what I see women wearing, this is clearly not the case.

heels, which they could not outrun a 5yo in.

clothes, which are body forming or so fragile a normal wash cycle will ruin them.

nails, which are overly decorated to the point of unhealthy weakness.

cosmetics, which shows they will never exert any energy that may induce sweating.

hair, which must always be perfect.

these are all traits of a person who shows on every level they do not work or need to put in any physical effort to live like royalty and on the tippy top of the food chain. Yet they proudly strut through the entire world without any fear b/c men created a civil society.

Mar_Ci • 6 points • 14 March, 2020 06:15 AM

They do all that to be attractive for men and they play victim when they don't succeed.

To quote idubbz, I WANT TO DIE

thereslcjg2000 • 3 points • 14 March, 2020 04:33 PM

What the fuck? Men are far, far more at risk of unsolicited violent crime than women are.

Classic example of double-think right on top with the " women are the main victims of war" thing.

Western White, female oppression beats a global pandemic 100% of the time. Everyone worried about some virus when real white women are imagining that they are being paid less for doing a fraction of the work men do. I mean, it's so HARD for them.

I live in Toronto, and this is 100% true. But the injured men arent always adults, their mostly teenagers. Teenagers. Just let that sink in (being shot by fucking 20 year olds)
