

My sister let herself be pressured into sex because she's a feminist.

My sister has taken on the role of feminism which is heavily encouraged by my parents. While I understand the good intentions, my entire family goes about it in all the wrong ways, my sister especially. In this particular case, my sister was on a big field trip for a club she was a part of. While I was not there myself, I have heard from my girlfriend and numerous others what she did on this trip. While staying at a hotel, one of the guys there wanted to have sex with her. My sister was not in a relationship with him and never was before or afterward. He began to pressure her into it which at this point I would think my sister would say no. If she is a feminist and all I would hope it at least inspires her to make the right decision at this time. Sadly it didn't. I heard from lots of people that my sister did indeed have sex with this man. I asked around as to why she would do this and I got an unexpected answer. My sister, being a feminist, saw it as disempowering to say no in this situation. All of the things that feminism taught my sister equated to her being pressured into sex when she didn't really want it. I understand this isn't the message that many people get but I think it's important to look at. I was already an anti-feminist when I heard about this but to me, this only strengthened my beliefs.

As much of a cancer that feminism is.....

Your sister just wanted to bang, bro.

UnLiberal04 • 14 points • 5 February, 2020 01:59 PM

Apparently, nobody ever 'just wants to bang'. Sadly for me.

if she said no then she didn't want to

Perhaps if she said no, but OP states clearly that she did not say no.

What kind of retarded logic was that lol?

StrawhatMucci • 8 points • 5 February, 2020 10:44 PM

Its a feminist. What do you expect common sense and logic? Lmao

feminism is so confused that it hits himself

Redhood616 • 25 points • 5 February, 2020 01:41 PM

Yup feminism encourages/brainwashes women to be promiscuous. I.e. have sex with tons of people because it's EmPoWeRiNg

Pretty much showing a story of how politics are causing people's lives to be ruined.

So she is empowered by... relenting to pressure? Females are so dumb.

XxfagxX • 7 points • 5 February, 2020 04:14 PM

*feminist

UnLiberal04 • 1 point • 11 February, 2020 02:17 AM

Yes, thank you

UnalignedRando • 4 points • 5 February, 2020 06:34 PM

You have to see it for what it is : your sister wanted it. She just wants to be able to play victim (with her whole narrative about how saying "no" would have been disempowering).

If the guy wasn't attractive she would have considered saying no very empowering and left it at that.

If anything the only feminist trait she exhibits is wanting to find a way to make herself the victim in any situation.

Well. Damn.

slixx_06 • 3 points • 5 February, 2020 07:20 PM

let herself be pressured

Keep pressuring her and she'll say she was raped.

Arteemiis • 3 points • 5 February, 2020 05:01 PM

Come again? Sorry dude but as a woman, she just wanted to bang and have an excuse as to not be slut shamed. This is so stupid

Your sister probably wanted to have sex with that guy at the time..... and may or may not regret it. Maybe try being a good sibling instead of whatever this post is.
