

Men have it worse in some things, women have it worse in others. Scratch that! Everyone is different and everyone struggles with different things! Bad things don't just happen to women!

November 3, 2019 | 294 upvotes | by Gameperson700

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

daphOof • 24 points • 3 November, 2019 11:46 AM

FINALLY SOMEONE WHO GETS IT

Everyone has it worse in different ways, not only one group of people are living in bad conditions

Philletto • 28 points • 3 November, 2019 07:47 AM

Men do have it worse, this poster gets it.

Gameperson700[S] • 35 points • 3 November, 2019 08:00 AM

It's from a anti men's rights sub. They still think women have it worse. The comment section on it was horrid...

Philletto • 11 points • 3 November, 2019 08:34 AM

I'll just pop in there and ironically congratulate them for figuring it out

Zzellama • 2 points • 3 November, 2019 09:57 PM

Link?

HeUIMi • 10 points • 3 November, 2019 02:08 PM

No Gender has it worse! Everyone has their own problems some are worse than the others and it doesn't depend on gender age or race.

Hegwik • 7 points • 3 November, 2019 12:54 PM

Does this mean 60% of domestic violence victims are women? Or I misinterpreted something. Sorry for the bad english

Make_me_laugh_plz • 6 points • 3 November, 2019 01:44 PM

Last time i checked 55 pct were men

pandolfio • 3 points • 3 November, 2019 07:47 PM

There's no double standards here:

- domestic violence is **always** presented as a gendered issue, due to toxic masculinity, directly associated with misogyny, where women are the only victims. Stating that men are 40% of DV victims is a way to remind people that DV is not a gendered issue

- even though homeless people are mostly men, this is not often something people remember. Therefore, saying that 1/4 is a woman is adding insult to injury, because it points out both the fact that nobody cares about homeless being mostly men.

Both examples show how gynocentric our world is, i.e. people only give a damn if it's about women.

Gameperson700[S] • 2 points • 3 November, 2019 08:01 PM

Yes

HeUIMi • 2 points • 3 November, 2019 02:06 PM

I hear this so often I hate it so annoying

Lord_Zahkrosis • 1 point • 23 November, 2019 02:27 AM

Is that seriously a real fucking sub?

Fucking...serious?

Gameperson700[S] • 1 point • 23 November, 2019 02:52 AM

I know. I thought the next thing I would see was unicorns on unicycles drinking tea. Crazy.