Is that seriously the female version of "trolling" or even "humor"? Hell, they are pathetic.

what's absolutely pathetic and laughable is men thinking they should have a say in what women do with their bodies :(and they feel like their opinions are weighted the same as the ones who are actually forced to go through a pregnancy :(a shame :(

It's the corpse of an other (the body inside of a womans body) which is discarded, genius, not 'their' body. This obvious point has been made a million times before though and yet your kind persists in ignorance, so I don't expect you to change. Also, y'all never have a problem when men are pro-abortion, so get real. Pro-life women don't seem to factor into your deluded reasoning either. SHAME. And who's being "forced" to go through a pregnancy? Newsflash, the vaaaast majority of unborn child murders aren't committed because a rape (force) was involved, they happen because irresponsible reality-denying liars like you control the culture and can get away anything. How very oppressed you must be.

First of all, a fetus in early stages of development is not a child. It is a bunch of cells. It has no concept of life. Abortions in this stage is nothing more than removing dead cells. It is not a child. Abortions that take place after 20 weeks account for <1% of abortions. Those are done on babies who are stillborn, and whose mothers do not want to carry a dead child to term. Also, you fail to see the pretty obvious issue: no one should be forced to carry a child they do not want. It is not solely the woman's fault. Condoms break, birth control fails, it is not due to irresponsibility. There are plenty of states who do not offer free contraception to women, not do they offer outlets (like planned parenthood) to help them and give them resources to not get pregnant in the first place. And what about the guys? Are you going to force the men who get these women pregnant to stay, or is the woman suppose to take full responsibility? Why do you think a child, who is not wanted in the first place, should be born into a family who will resent it? A family who already can't afford it? Pregnancy is a physically and emotionally draining thing that, newflash, a good chunk of women do not want. You are so far gone in your own arrogance, that you prioritize a life that hasn't even developed over a life of a person who has a life, and who's life will be more greatly affected. Your words mean nothing to me, and I will rather listen to experts than some fuck on reddit who has, evidently, no idea what they're talking about. Not fixing women the right to choose is control, and it's a decision that has been made by men who cannot get pregnant.

She's been pregnant for 10 months? I don't think that's how it do.

Also late term abortions are almost always for when the baby and/or mother is sick and will not make it, needing to terminate to save the mother's life or not have the baby suffer. They are usually wanted pregnancies that is a very hard thing for the mother to do. People that don't understand that piss me off so much

I am totally ok with abortion in cases of complications
