

Just a little thing that bothered me. Why gender it? Men aren't the only people who rape or commit assault in general. Why not just title it "simple self-defense moves EVERYONE should know"

It doesn't matter tbh. These tactics will work for anybody. Men would have an easier time defending themselves anyway than women so they might not even need stuff like this.

You've got a point there. But what should the genders be?

Ok, that is a good idea.

Let me remind you that almost all rapists are men

Let me remind you that that's irrelevant to my point. Both genders can rape and should know how to defend against it or assault in general.

Hmm true, but then again with the exception of crotch, those moves still work the same on women
