Feminists only want equality when it suits them. Anything else is branded as misogyny.

And they have biggest ego, they can't eveny say man because they must say people with penis. I just hate them

I think they are reffering to trans "women" entering female bathrooms and locker rooms, which in my opinion is completely validated and sound when you look at the possibility of abusing your gender "expression" . That's the whole premise of TERF's i suppose. Like I can say I identify as a woman, enter a female bathroom to invade their privacy, and pull out my dick. If they complain I can accuse them of transphobia, sexism, hate speech etc. That's the main reason I despise some of these people, because they've been given an excuse to do whatever they want and no one can say a word against them without being labeled a trans-hater.

On the other part of your post, I think men should have men-exclusive spaces, if women are able to have them, why shouldn't we? The only difference is I'm not going to bitch about it online like they do, I'll create my own SaFe SpAcE!!

are you retarded? do you actually think that restrooms are the same as barber shops?

xdshohet • -4 points • 22 May, 2020 09:09 AM

Am I the only one that doesn't see a problem with that?

Iloovepink • 5 points • 22 May, 2020 11:11 AM

There's a huge problem with that. they want their space but don't want to give men their space? I am a woman, me and my girlfriends have places that we don't want men at. men have places that they don't want women at and we respect their boundaries. for example a man cave or a barber shop meant for men only. I respect that and I wouldn't make noise if i was denied entry. i will give an example, the feminist that was not allowed entry in man's barber shop and went bananas, ended up making the news claiming "it was sexiest" and her fellow mental patients were supporting her.

wait, you might have read that wrong. i read it more like " fair is fair, women have their space, men have theirs" not " the feminists have a point though"

I know its hard to gauge with tone though. maybe we should wait and see what they mean first
