We Can't Have a Feminist Future Without Abolishing the Family

The feminist thinker Sophie Lewis has a radical proposal for what comes next.

'feminist thinker'. Well there's a hilarious oxymoron

Yeah! We should just only have lesbian couples, get all mean in jail and steal their sperm for the lesbian couples to use to reproduce! What a wonderful world would that be

Women are trying to turn the tables and make it so they run the world and men stay at home being the bitches. Well unfortunately, evolution has different plans.

If she was so dumpy/plain looking she wouldn't be this way.

Yeah often think if they got attention from men, they wouldn't be like this.

Fat ugly chick doesn't like that others have relational success! ☐

Simps get off on this.

Well that is a very counter misogynistic maneuver actually. The family is based on a patriarchal role model which is why Hitler, Stalin, and Italy all tried to push for more families, but I think she's missing the point.

Dude. The family is literally how our society exists and is very clearly more important than a feminist thinking long term relationships are misogynist. There's a lot more wrong with her point than that. Also yes a father is naturally a role model for boys, but mothers have an equally if not more important role in modern society.

Merlinfrost • -6 points • 4 March, 2020 11:51 AM

I'm not saying they don't, but naturally the male is the leader of the family.

Dancersep38 • 5 points • 4 March, 2020 01:11 PM

So? Women head the household and men head the family. If individual families want to adjust those roles, I'm all for it, but the consequences to society of demolishing that structure has been dire. Look at what's happening to our own society. Were there things wrong with society in the 50s? Very much so. Are we better off social socially than we were in the 50s? I'd argue vehemently no.

The dictators you mentioned didn't advocate for families to be patriarchal; they did it because it's literally the best way to assure the most stable society with the highest potential for healthy population growth. What made the Nazi's scary wasn't that they were bumbling idiots. They were scary because they were so calculated and logical that it became pathological and destructive.

Mate I'm not supporting her, I'm just saying this is a common view among feminists.

Sorry. Your original comment doesn't read as sarcasm.
