When people criticize women, they call it misogyny. When people criticize men, they call it social justice.

This is the most dominant privilege women hold in society.

Goal post moving, double standards, and vague definitions are just a few of the many tricks used by feminist scholars to ensure everything supports the "fact" of Patriarchy.

When people criticize bad or creepy female behavior, they're called sexist and are told they're bullying and ganging up on women

When people call out and criticize bad or creepy male behavior, people have no problem with it and even receive money, awards and fame for doing it

The most dominant privilege that women hold is the right to control reproduction.

Men are told "No parts, No opinion". And are completely shut out the decision making process.

If feminists were truly concerned with equality, they'd be striving to include men in reproductive decisions. But that will never happen.

mrkeifer86 • 8 points • 18 July, 2020 03:01 PM

Then suggest since they have abortion as a "out" then men should have a legal way to relinquish all rights physical and financial in the same time frame women can get abortions in the interest of true equality.
Their response to that will tell you everything you need to know about if they want actual equality or not.

Not the most dominant but close.

Misha-Yuri-30[] • 6 points • 26 July, 2020 04:45 PM

Not to mention: If a man succeeds better than a woman, it's misogyny. If it's the other way around it's empowerment.

sumweebyboi • 8 points • 17 July, 2020 09:43 PM

wtf does misogyny even mean? do they just use big words to look smart

Username1642 • 13 points • 17 July, 2020 10:31 PM

Misogyny is the hatred of women. Misandry is the hatred of men. One is more common to hear, while the other is more commonly occurring.

It's not the greatest privilege...

It's not even a privilege.

It's the basis of all privilege.

It's what creates privilege.

It's what justifies everything.

The real culprits are men.

Since the dawn of time they've let themselves be manipulated by their wives.

It's the man who gives to the woman.

It's the man who is the strongest and most intelligent.

His great weakness is his kindness.

The only gender capable of empathy.

He's the one who takes upon himself insults and social categorizations.

The narcissistic, lying, selfish, sexist, stupid perverts...

Terms used against men that perfectly define women.

The rejection of one's faults on the other is a well-known phenomenon.

Nope not at all. In reality it's exactly that. What you see is the very vocal minority of people who arent representative of the movement as a whole yet you lack the emotional maturity to see it as such and instead group them all together. i.e the fragile male ego.

IntactBroadSword • 10 points • 18 July, 2020 05:40 AM

You are a misandrist. There is no "fragile Male ego". It's something completely made up to belittle men, especially if they raise any human rights concerns. You people are sick.

Username1642 • 8 points • 17 July, 2020 10:36 PM

Exactly. It's about women's rights exclusively. Equality is the justification, not the goal. By definition, it only cares about men in the context of any rights men have, women must also have. Any female-only rights will be left that way by feminism, by definition. Try egalitarianism.

BwackDoge • -1 points • 17 July, 2020 10:42 PM

No it's about equality. Yes all men and women have the same rights but I don't think you can name any female only rights.

Username1642 • 8 points • 17 July, 2020 10:48 PM

No it's about equality

The definition you gave specifically said it's the advocacy of women's rights on the grounds of equality. Women's rights are the objective, equality is the justification given. By definition, it is exclusively beneficial to women. Pure equality, regardless of gender, race, ect, fixing problems for all groups, would be egalitarianism.

Yes all men and women have the same rights

Then what is everybody complaining about? Absolute gender equality achieved, everyone can go home. Feminism is no longer needed, goodnight.

I don't think you can name any female only rights

Just off the top of my head, there's all the reproductive rights, especially regarding abortions (although honestly I don't really see a better solution on that particular front). Plus matters of custody, judicial favouring, assumptions of guilt, etc.

TiredExFeminist • 2 points • 18 July, 2020 01:25 AM

Men and women to have the same right.

Women are the one subjugated all of the world and through the Majority of history. If you can't handle that than maybe there is a point to feminism

Just off the top of my head, there's all the reproductive rights, especially regarding abortions (although honestly I don't really see a better solution on that particular front). Plus matters of custody, judicial favouring, assumptions of guilt, etc.

Men have the same rights. I can choose to get a vasectomy yet there is a bunch of people who fight so women can't get abortion. Soo good try. Custody is closer to 50/50. Judicial favouring boils down to statistics men are more often to be repeat and violent offenders. Assumptions of guilt? What? Take a look at rape stats. Less than 5% of rapists see prison while women are blamed because they were raped.

Username1642 • 8 points • 17 July, 2020 11:13 PM

Men and women to have the same right

Do they or don't they? Make up your mind

Women are the one subjugated all of the world and through the Majority of history

And men have issues too. Egalitarianism fixes everyone's problems, rather than just those of one specific group. Women do have more problems, but that doesn't mean that men don't face problems either.

I can choose to get a vasectomy

Both genders can choose to be physically sterilised. The only difference is that it's easier to do it to men because the operation is less intrusive, which is hardly society's fault.

yet there is a bunch of people who fight so women can't get abortion

And there are people who fight so that women can get an abortion right until their water breaks. You get idiots and extremists arguing both ways.

Less than 5% of rapists see prison

Is that before or after they've been proven guilty? That said, a lot of my information is outdated, although I have had significant difficulty finding anything less than three years old. If you have more recent sources, please do share them.

BwackDoge • 1 point • 17 July, 2020 11:20 PM

Do they or don't they? Make up your mind

Typo grow up.

And men have issues too.

Name a single one not caused by other men.

And there are people who fight so that women can get an abortion right until their water breaks. You get idiots and extremists arguing both ways

Absolutely false. There is nobody arguing that. I can see you're only capable of arguing in bad faith but let me fix it for you 3rd trimester abortions are only performed under extreme circumstances. No fetal viability or giving birth will kill the mother.

Is that before or after they've been proven guilty? That said, a lot of my information is outdated, although I have had significant difficulty finding anything less than three years old. If you have more recent sources, please do share them.

This is the problem with egalitarianism. You're just sexist and it makes you upset to think women get the protections they deserve and you get nothing out of it. That's the only reason the movement existed because the thought of only empowering women makes you uncontrollably angry.

What part of what I said comes off as "uncontrollably angry"? Wouldn't that involve swearing and blatant aggression, or at least some projection of sexism, rage, etc? And again, egalitarianism = absolute equality. Anti-egalitarianism = anti-equality. Maybe it's just a matter of association, mixing a dislike of me with a dislike of a movement, but saying the problem with egalitarianism is sexism is somewhat illogical, as by definition, it is "the doctrine that all people are equal and deserve equal rights and opportunities".

Females have the right not to have their genitals mutilated at birth in the United States. They have a right to a whole body unlike us, who is subject to a pedophile with a knife slicing our sex organs apart as children for no other reason than the sexual fetish American women have for a skinless stump of a penis.

No father can say they don't like to perform oral sex on women with their full genitalia and use this as a justification to have a "physician" rape his daughter with a knife forever disfiguring them. In places where this does happen, it happens to males too. But there is no organization dedicated to stopping the ritual abuse of boys like there is for girls. In fact organizations donate millions of dollars to mutilate as many boys in around the world as possible so they can harvest and traffic their sex organs for profit. Stupid westerners think this child rape practice "prevents HIV".

BwackDoge • 0 points • 18 July, 2020 05:41 AM

Well, you also have the right not to have your body mutilated. It isn't forced upon you personally. A decision is made, it just isn't made by you, it's made by your parents who are the ones responsible for your well being and every decision you make until you're 18.

But I see you don't know about the husband stitch. It's a procedure done on women after they give birth often without their consent for the sole benefit of making sex more pleasurable for the man. Despite the pain it causes on the women.

IntactBroadSword • 3 points • 18 July, 2020 05:45 AM

Male genital mutilation is by force.

it's made by your parents who are the ones responsible for your well being and every decision you make until you're 18.

That's by force. Genital mutilation isn't well being.

But I see you don't know about the husband stitch. It's a procedure done on women after they give birth often without their consent for the sole benefit of making sex more pleasurable for the man. Despite the pain it causes on the women.

I do know about this. It's a form of genital mutilation. But a woman has to at least be in a certain condition for this to even be considered whereas all a male has to be is Male and born, and any child rapist can cut him up with a knife, causing permanent damage from birth.

Parents dont have unlimited rights to cut off any body part they please. And proxy consent is intended for neccessary medical procedures not blood religious rituals and cosmetic surgery on a minors genitals, which is already a felony.

Nice false comparison. You tried.

BwackDoge • 1 point • 18 July, 2020 05:57 AM

Male genital mutilation is by force.

It's a decision made by your caregivers. The decision wasn't forced upon them.

That's by force. Genital mutilation isnt well being.

Several people would beg to differ.

I do know about this. It's a form of genital mutilation. But a woman has to at least be in a certain condition for this to even be considered whereas all a male has to be is Male and born, and any child rapist can cut him up with a knife, causing permanent damage from birth.

By certain condition do you mean, a woman? But definitely not any child rapist. They are more often than not, doctors.

Parents dont have unlimited rights to cut off any body part they please. And proxy consent is intended for neccessary medical procedures not blood religious rituals and cosmetic surgery on a minors genitals, which is already a felony.

Well as their primary care givers they can make several decisions about your life. They can choose wether or not you get vaccinated. Like I see you're going a little over the top here so just bring it down a notch. Not every circumcision is done for religious reasons and it also isn't a procedure that's objectively bad.

Nice false comparison. You tried.

Not at all a false comparison. You just don't like it because you don't like the idea that women can be victims.

Oh an in response to all the spam.youre sending me. You're way too over the top to have an actual conversation with. You're making way to many assumptions.

But if I need to bring it back. All of this is caused by the patriarchy.

IntactBroadSword • 3 points • 18 July, 2020 05:48 AM

So the ritual where the rabbi sucks the blood from the child's penis with their mouth after mutilating it, even giving it herpes, is "well being"?

Show me a treatment of female that is equivalent to the metzizah bpeh ritual.

IntactBroadSword • 2 points • 18 July, 2020 05:55 AM

But I see you don't know about the husband stitch. It's a procedure done on women after they give birth often without their consent for the sole benefit of making sex more pleasurable for the man. Despite the pain it causes on the women.

And again, she wouldn't need to be so "tight" if they weren't severely desensitizing the man with this brutal genital mutilation ritual. I'm not making excuses for it, but clearly you don't see the further implications of sexually torturing the male gender with this heinous child rape crime. Many of the problems you feminists complain about come from the dismemberment of the male from his sex organs.

Don't like porn? How about keeping him intact instead of depleting him of all physical penile sensation. No wonder men are hooked on porn. It's because you people keep raping them when they are children
