Lel it's hilarious how most of the replies are about putting her first and valuing her more than yourself. Tells me that deep down inside you all are good men. You'll gave it your best but the world didn't care. Don't worry brothers. I care. I know how bad it felt. Glad to be a part of this community.

Great comment, once you realize the system values strength over sacrifice you are given new life.

PrometheusRisesIN • 15 points • 16 July, 2020 10:49 PM

We were supposed to be men first, good at being a man and then later would have opted for becoming a 'good man'.

Hilarious? More like melancholy. But you gotta hit rock bottom in order to cultivate that steely-reserve and unwavering self belief.

I think it's interesting how random people on the internet can help more than others IRL

Lol dude, I'm reading your post history. You are in the same boat as me. Enjoy the rage, let it all fucking out. FORWARD! INTO THE FUCKING BATTLE! If I tell you I went on a 8h+ (200KM)bike ride alone, during the night, in a road with very little safety and without a light on my bike, all fueled by PURE RAGE AND HATRED, you would not believe it. Its been 6 months for me now, and it still hasn't gone away. All I can do is lift fucking heavy and punch the walls. Listening to heavy metal while lifting also helps. When the rage hits, do not sit still, always get physical. Yes, block her on everything. Shes out, make her suffer. Also I wrote that because I was fucking pissed because of it.

rickle_pickk • 1 point • 17 July, 2020 07:46 PM

I never had one foot out the door. She trusted I'd stay in the relationship so she got fat, she had a ton of mood swings and she was starting to get controlling. I left after she had a weird reaction about what would happen if she accidentally got pregnant (she couldn't have for an additional 2 years as she had an implant but I didn't trust it).

Embarrassing beta male shit.

Long sappy texts in the morning and evening, constant attention, I wrote letters for her when she left the country and cried before she left. It was so cringe. I was disgustingly dependent and never put myself first. Sometimes I wish I could go back and slap myself for the way I handled that entire relationship, but these experiences are what lead me to TRP and self development.

Live and learn.

PurpleLemon4de • 22 points • 16 July, 2020 09:35 PM

rickle_pickk • 10 points • 16 July, 2020 11:19 PM

Were you me? Fuck, this hurts to read. Guess I had to go through finding out she cheated on me after 3.5 years of relationship to realize that I've been doing it wrong my whole life. Hurts to know you were a beta.

loliamsobroke • 5 points • 17 July, 2020 06:06 PM

Still think women turn men into betas. If you give in you lose, women want dominant men not lovey dovey, constantly apologising, checking up on her, making sure she's happy at all times-bullshit.

rickle_pickk • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 06:51 PM

I wish I knew that before she cheated...

Of course, it is entirely her fault that she cheated - fuck that thot.

But I was acting like a beta, nonetheless.

beamandylan • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 12:27 AM

Hurt to write but I try not to dwell on the past. At least I learned a lot from that relationship. Can't imagine losing 3.5 years like that though... Make sure you learn from it and make your future relationships better!

Straight up block me. In hindsight I only wanted to be proven wrong, but being proven right again was a very bitter pill to reswallow.

Not being able to control my reactions to their actions. This is important to master. Be calm, cool and collected so they have nothing to grab at.

alphabachelor • 17 points • 16 July, 2020 09:11 PM

Ignored a lot of red flags and broke one of the cardinal rules -- putting her first.

Should have kept her as a short term fling but I thought she was the one.

recursoinominado • 15 points • 16 July, 2020 10:56 PM

Not enough boundaries. I didn't ended things when i needed and that led to her losing respect for me and all went to hell after it.

Trying to make her happy, compromising too much, only to find out later that the problem was in her ungrateful stand on life, not in my actions. Some people don't know how to be happy, get the fuck away from those people.

I keep seeing the above mistake over and over in real life and series/movies. A good man with a lot of value to offer takes an average woman (sometimes damaged) with a pretty face to himself. She is happy at first, only to take him for granted later.

RagingMayo • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 06:20 AM*

Hey man, boundaries is a big thing that I try to implement in my day-to-day life because my mother never taught me to have any growing up. I am also a virgin mofo who never had a girlfriend, so I am kinda scared that I would get eaten up by a woman in a relationship. So I am happy about every little nugget of experience and wisdom I can get from other men.

Could you by any chance give me some examples where you should have had boundaries or where she deliberately stepped over yours? What should be the consequences, if she doesn't care about your boundaries?

Also a little story. I heard a couple in a train talk a few days ago. The dude tried to explain to his girlfriend why he doesn't feel comfortable that she is hanging out with male friends. She reacted with that this type of thinking is outdated and oldfashioned and that it is not her problem, if he feels insecure about it. He tried to argue and in some way it seemed like he negotiated with her ("oh baby come on, try to understand me") and tried to appease her by giving her a few kisses. It was kinda cringe listening to, but then again I have no idea of these things.

recursoinominado • 5 points • 17 July, 2020 02:13 PM*

Man, this is a tricky thing to do, it is more of an art. You have to be willing to end thing when you enforce a boundaries and this takes balls. Your power as a man in a relationship is to walk away at any time you feel you should, no matter if you are dating for a week or a decade. It is tricky because the line between strong boundaries and being abusive is thin. The thing is, ultimately, you can't control the women nor try to, you only have control of your actions. Let me give you an example: let's say that you don't want your gf to go clubbing without you. The way you approach the situation is before even making her your gf, when you guys are dating, you say that you wouldn't date someone who goes clubbing without you. If she disagreea, protests, argue, you know then and there that she is not an option to be in a relationship with. That's what, ideally, everyone should do, the problem is that most men are desperate as fuck and so they can't enforce boundaries. Let's say that she kind of agrees with you and later on you make her your gf, she get a little too comfortable and one day text you that she is going clubbing. Here you have to be clear and honest: baby, you know how I feel about a gf of mine going to a club without me, but I can't make you do anything. If she goes, you absolutely have to end thing then and there, no arguing, no drama, just cut and dry. If you don't, she just learned that you don't have the balls to leave her and she absolutely will use this against you later, every time going further and further away from your boundaries until one day she cheats you with a BBC because she doesn't respect you anymore.

The mistake guys make is trying to make the girl comply with his rules, arguing, debating, threatening or even beating. Don't ever do any of those. You are like a developed country, you have a lot to offer, this are your rules, if the girl wants in, she have to follow those or get the fuck away.

RagingMayo • 2 points • 17 July, 2020 10:42 PM

Man, I really appreciate that you put so much thought into this. I didn't think about the vetting part as a tool to support my preset boundaries. Although I probably can't vet for everything as the noob that I am. I feel like I have to go through a few rough experiences to learn how I apply my boundaries. Also having seen and experienced abundance (=know that I can replace her) in my life probably helps with walking away.

mickey__ • 5 points • 17 July, 2020 09:35 AM

I also had scarcity mindset and mild oneitis. I was raised to figure shit out on my own before asking for help so when I told her to figure a task herself she got upset and left. Starting to realize there was a trend altruism pulling me way down mentally and emotionally while not affecting her much at all.

I strayed from my mission and merged nearly every aspect of my daily life with her. Probably would still be together if distance wasn't brought upon us, but im grateful events transpired the way they did as it was an important lesson in reforging myself.

TBronze • 20 points • 16 July, 2020 09:27 PM

Lost frame at a party.

Blew up at all her friends who kept asking me why I wouldnt allow her to drink and effectively told them if its her choice to leave her be.

3 weeks later her mum let slip she was pregnant - anyway I figured she'd tell me in her own time - she didnt tell me but what I did find out was she was sleeping with another dude in the week immediately after the party.

She miscarried (thankfully there is a god out there) at which stage I had completely called our relationship off. Removed myself from the lease which ultimately forced her to move in with her father cause she couldnt afford to live on her own and I went back to basic TRP internalising the sidebar and picking myself back up.

I took her back after she fucked one of my good friends who was also my pledge brother. Told myself it was a drunk mistake and I should forgive and forget.

After we broke up the second and final time a few months ago, I find out that immediately after she went and fucked two more of my fraternity brothers, one was my grand-little.

I can't believe I was such a CLOWN ugh agoodcrayon • 5 points • 17 July, 2020 02:35 AM

So are frat bros not really bros?

Never went to college so I have no idea how frats operate.

bminusmusic • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 03:20 AM

Well, idk. I've forgiven both of them for the most part. I was really angry and upset for a while, but then I tried to put myself in their shoes. They're super drunk and this girl (my ex) is coming onto them aggressively (clearly just to spite me because they're my friends and I'm close with them). They probably haven't gotten laid in forever. So combine that desperation with them being blackout drunk, and I'm not surprised they give into that temptation. Maybe they would've done it sober, hopefully not, who knows. Just have to be the bigger person in the end because it's better for everyone involved.

RagingMayo • 8 points • 17 July, 2020 06:50 AM

Nonetheless you should no longer associate with them. It is really important to forgive since it is an entirely personal and internal process. It is about healing mental wounds. But forgetting is something else. And people who pushed your boundary of friendship should have no place in your life anymore in my opinion. It's about how you value yourself. Also, I would stop making excuses for other people.

jellysquatch • 16 points • 16 July, 2020 09:22 PM

I cheated on her repeatedly. Really what I wanted was to spin plates but I thought that I had to be in a relationship to get what I wanted. Scarcity mindset really. To be honest I didn't even realise spinning plates was an option.

I was such a fucking hypocrite and so out of touch with my own true nature before RedPill. I am so much more upfront and honest with women now.

Became emotional in front of her. Seen it a million times, the second you show emotion and need to them it's donezo

smolzino • 6 points • 17 July, 2020 07:58 PM

It's not, unless you vetted her so bad that you got yourself a sociopath. I opened up to my gf about some issues that were affecting me and my relationship, actually broke down crying while doing it.

She was SO nice to me during, and after it. She went from being kind of angry with me to giving me all of her attention, being supportive and understanding. She's never held it against me or lost respect for me.

Wanna know why? After I cleared up things and opened up, I didn't stay miserable and kept venting about it. I did it for the sake of honesty and openness, and then I worked on my issues and became better again

Not knowing to work on my mental health. My wife pushed hard for me to figure out what my deal was. It explains so much and help us push past my characteristics and help my self and her recognize when I'm spiraling and so fixated on things out.

IrvineKafka • 7 points • 17 July, 2020 12:04 AM

Turned into a needy beta-simp.

On reflection it is utterly embarrassing.

Learned my very hard, but very valuable, and, ultimately required, lesson.

Turned my self around. Still have a few dips in the road. But, overall, I go by the 90/10 rule. 90% RP, slip into sometimes 10% BP - before catching it and going right back to RP.

She never even notices those momentary slips because my usual stasis is my solid, DNGAF, willing to walk at any minute frame.

Liberating.

gbnz87 • 4 points • 16 July, 2020 11:48 PM

Two things come to mind. She was working in a hospital during lockdown while I was at home with not much to do. I let her take a bit of control of when we would meet up and what we would do since I figured shed be exhausted and stressed from work as at the time it was really up in their air if they had PPE or not. Also during lockdown we agreed that we would go for walks together and not do any hand holding or close affection as she was really concerned with dealing with patients and not being protected. In hind sight its easy to say we should of kept intimate as neither of us have been unwell but at the time there was a lot of confusion out there and we figured it was for the best. It pretty much killed all the momentum of the relationship and she ended up breaking up with me. They were the two things in my control that come to mind.

I thought she would stick with me when I was living 18hrs (plane) away and when I stopped paying her bills. She shacked up with a chubby low-life, squirted out a kid (her 2nd), and stopped talking to me. I literally make 30X more/mo. than her or her chubby low-life. It was her turn with me, and she blew it.

Indeterminate on my direction, lack of frame and resources, emotionally invested

Johnfeb94 • 4 points • 18 July, 2020 02:04 AM

Settled and became too comfortable and stopped taking care of myself.

Reading a lot of these comments, I think a lot of people here don't understand extreme TRP views aren't very compatible with LTR's. LTR's are much more of a balancing act whereas TRP will help you get laid and play the field better. TRP can help you get the girl into a LTR with you if you want, but it won't be sustainable if you're too extreme on either end of the spectrum generally speaking.

moderation is key

Johnfeb94 • 2 points • 18 July, 2020 05:47 PM

Indeed.

zippycezh • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 02:44 AM

I loved her more then myself.

Alzatorus • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 03:29 AM

Pretty sure it was when I met her.

Metalgear222 • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 03:02 PM

My one LTR a long time ago I was too much of a pussy to hard next when it was deserved. Slowly she lost respect as she realized my boundaries weren't worth upholding.

Don't settle boys. She's not special. There are better out there. Just tell your dick to chill and be patient.

Thinking it's just my turn from now on, it wasn't just mine.

InflatableRaft • 2 points • 16 July, 2020 10:35 PM

She stayed the night.

elbananerozoy • 2 points • 17 July, 2020 12:47 AM

Idealized her, thinking she was the one, going through the garbage. But im not gonna lie, I cheated on Her two times in 5 years and I applied dread too much

Zapche • 2 points • 16 July, 2020 08:40 PM

Continuing to use red pill after I got her

mrrooftops • 9 points • 16 July, 2020 08:58 PM

Let me rephrase that for you: "Continued to use a thin veneer of red pill after you got her"

Emulating 'Alpha' will catch up with you in the end. You have to vertically integrate it into your whole being. Anything less and the girl will sniff it out in no time.

twolanterns • 10 points • 16 July, 2020 09:06 PM

I'd say taking TRP literally in an LTR is much worse for the longevity (often but not necessarily the success) of the relationship. You can't do mind games for years.

You have to find a girl with good values who sees the world in a similar way. Keep your shit together, chin up, don't lose yourself into her. A relationship where the girl doesn't know how you actually see her because you try to play her as a plate will never bring happiness nor value to your life

mrrooftops • 3 points • 16 July, 2020 09:28 PM

So TRP is mind games to you?

Zapche • 6 points • 16 July, 2020 09:35 PM

TRP doesn't work on a LTR you have to let her win 2/10 times can't always be alpha you should 8/10 times but they ain't teaching that here

smolzino • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 08:04 PM

100%. My LTR is extremely healthy, and I think the secret is that I dominate her and keep her in check, but I give enough rope that she still has a voice and she knows she can trust me to be understanding if I need to be. Basically I'm in charge but I'm not a dictator

Zapche • 1 point • 17 July, 2020 10:22 PM

That's the proper way I was a dictator cause I felt like if I ever let her win anything that I was a bitch

Johnfeb94 • 1 point • 18 July, 2020 02:09 AM and I think the secret is that I dominate her Lmfao wtf?

mickey__ • 1 point • 17 July, 2020 09:47 AM

Where to 'learn' that balance?

Zapche • 3 points • 17 July, 2020 10:31 AM

Don't come to TRP for every answer do what you feel like doing even if it's going to make you look like a bitch mickey__ • 1 point • 25 July, 2020 07:16 PM

how do you do it

mickey__ • 2 points • 17 July, 2020 09:47 AM

Where to 'learn' that balance?
