

I need your help

September 19, 2014 | 4 upvotes | by PlebDestroyer

I might be sitting next to a Really hot 5/10 (trying to take her off the pedestal) tomorrow morning in my comp sci class and I wanna make my move.

Any tips/guidelines on how I could set something up during or after class?

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

mbillion • 17 points • 19 September, 2014 01:11 AM

hello world

[deleted] 19 September, 2014 02:18 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 4 points • 19 September, 2014 03:58 AM

This is exactly what I needed to hear. Totally going to apply this tomorrow.

Goldfulgore • 2 points • 19 September, 2014 09:15 AM

5/10 ? Trollooololololololo

BluepillProfessor • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 05:32 AM

There are tons of books on this topic. They all basically say the same thing. Be confident. Don't be affected by her beauty. Be bold and direct. TELL her what you want clearly and without any hesitation or fear. Have a plan but don't overthink it. Be light and friendly. Build Rapport and then...

Instigate: Make yourself a sexual being with her. It could be an off color joke but the better way is to hold your confident look just a tiny bit too long (DON'T be creepy- but DO check her out like she is a piece of sizzling steak you want to flip on the grill if only for a second). When she catches you smile very lightly and continue the conversation. Initiate isolation play sooner rather than later.

Isolate: Get her alone (like a serial killer) so you can have your way with her. Dinner or a drink at a campus location is the next logical step.

Escalate: Seduce...Kino...Kiss...Fuck

Read Day Bang, The Natural, or Models on talking to girls. Read The Book of Pook for a more theoretical understanding of the topic. You are in school so you already have basic conversation skills. Listen for "Bait" that she might throw which you can build off of in order to establish rapport (which you already have being in the same class/school).

However, THIS is the critical piece: Abundance. You are the prize. Not her. She qualifies to you. You don't qualify to her. IF you find her interesting enough it is possible you may want to give her a chance to earn more of your time. THAT is your attitude my brother. Now go forth.

Mouthpiece • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 01:41 PM

Just before you're leaving class, ask her to join you for coffee or lunch. That's it. It's that simple.

[deleted] 19 September, 2014 09:11 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 12:43 PM

She's an 8 - treat her like a 5. Or just go binary which is what i've switched to.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 02:28 PM

But apparently that is just a bad self delusion, you can call her a 2 but if you only find words of praise she will still functionally be an 11.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 08:29 PM

Only when i'm trying to convey something to you guys.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 08:35 PM

When you're describing your lunch, don't talk about the French fries or the rice, talk about why there is only one kabab and 2 sides on your plate. Big picture: enviroment, SMVs and history.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 September, 2014 08:39 PM

College/high school(dual enrollment), moderate SMV, not labled as a "thot" so probably pretty clean.

[deleted] • 1 point • 20 September, 2014 06:08 AM

You should be more relaxed in school. Don't do "pick up" in class do it at parties like the rest of the horndogs. Keep school for networking and go hard on indirect game at parties and outside school:let the gossip wheel be your wing man.

[deleted] • 1 point • 20 September, 2014 04:17 PM

Fair enough. Sounds easier than approaching her for pickup in any case.

[deleted] • 1 point • 20 September, 2014 04:45 PM

It easier because you aren't going outside of the socially acceptable frame.