i'm not sure what was funnier; the incessant emojis, or her asking you to buy her a smartphone on your birthday stop wasting time and energy on this one, talk to some local girl. you're obviously in your teenage years, so just meet a new girl at school or at a party and stop getting emotionally invested in a girl that lives in a different country.

We've been messaging each other almost every day since June.

Do you know what a beta orbiter is? You should read the sidebar.

I still don't understand why people spend hours texting when they could just hit another icon and actually call the person and have a conversation. Maybe I am just old and the world has passed me by- or maybe the world is what is really fucked up.

Go fuck someone else. For your sake. How does this time spent chatting to her benefit you?
