

Guy friend turned creepy. I told him it's making me uncomfortable but he said it's my fault.

July 30, 2021 | 116 upvotes | by kittycakes22

I told him I'm not attracted to him in that way. He's overweight, 7 years older than me and has a very dirty apartment. We became friends because he was helping me out with music recording for my band. He was incredibly nice and understanding. He knew about my celibacy and that I'm not dating anyone, and he was very polite and respectful. Until he wasn't. He would make creepy comments like "I wouldn't mind a girl like you giving me a lap dance" "you have nice feet". As well as a bunch of creepy staring, and talking about how id "like to be slapped". I saw him with his friends while bar hopping and he grabbed me in a non friend kind of way.

After explaining this he thinks I "led him on because people usually don't respond when someone says something that makes you uncomfortable."

And this is why women feel uncomfortable opening up. What a scrote. Was I in the wrong here? I could have said something sooner but I've had enough situations like this. Thanks.

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

mashibears • 101 points • 30 July, 2021 08:29 PM

The time to drop this LVM like a hot potato is long due, my sister.

miloba_ • 65 points • 30 July, 2021 08:44 PM

This.

This is not a “friend”. He was hoping to get close to you and was playing the part to do so. Luckily he showed his cards (they always do!).

There is nothing you need to apologize for. Cut this man off, for your sake. Not only is he creepy, he’s specifically made remarks about abuse and sexualizing you.

kittycakes22[S] • 24 points • 30 July, 2021 09:58 PM

I think because I was basically paying him to record us I felt uncomfortable saying anything. I’m glad I did now cause I’m over it! So creepy.

miloba_ • 11 points • 31 July, 2021 12:54 AM

So glad you did!

In the future, there is next to nothing that should stop you from speaking up if you’re uncomfortable. Obviously please put your safety first, so if it happens when you’re alone and you don’t feel safe, prioritize getting out of the situation over everything else. But if you’re otherwise in a public setting and can leave immediately after calling him out, definitely do. Especially in an instance like this! You were PAYING him. You have even more power in this situation to call his behavior out.

bleda_princezna • 46 points • 30 July, 2021 08:29 PM

Oh hell no. You were not in the wrong. That guy sounds nasty! Hearing that stuff would make me uncomfortable as well, he sounds like a nightmare.

He's probably the typical "nice guy", treating you nice just because he thinks you'll put out and when it backfires, he'll turn nasty - showing you what he's really like as a person.

kittycakes22[S] • 25 points • 30 July, 2021 09:53 PM

I explained how that slapping comment sounds like he watches too much porn and he said I’m kink shaming. Rather than just apologizing and saying that he’ll stop he’s getting defensive and turning it all around on me. So yeah cutting his ass off.

Sea_Soil • 43 points • 30 July, 2021 08:57 PM

He's not your friend and he never was.