

Men contribute majority to the welfare/ pool and tend to get nothing out of it. Here are some statistics from Australia and U.K. probably similar across the western hemisphere. What are the statistics in your countries with regards to gender tax contribution and spend?

September 3, 2020 | 1 upvotes | by CelestialAmorphous

In Australia Women get 4 times more spend on their healthcare than men.

<https://www.news.com.au/lifestyle/health/men-die-earlier-but-womens-health-gets-four-times-more-funding/news-story/6bfc4ea7da62ad84743d7451de6de960>

In the UK Men pay 3+ times more tax than women, however women have:

2+ times more spend on healthcare than men (considering male suicide is 4 times higher this is criminal imo)

55% of all housing benefits spending go towards single women while 86% of homelessness are men.

Practically similar for all metrics of spending.

you see where this is going. How is it in your countries? which is genuinely best country for a young man that doesn't want get robbed from the system do you think?

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments
