What Amber Heard has done is a scary example of toxic femininity.

A lot of famous women are big pushers of feminism and equality, among other things. However in these recordings Amber is actively giving into the gender stereotype that she couldn't possibly hurt him physically because she's "weaker". He's a big man, so who cares if he gets hit or even loses a finger? He can take it. She can hit him because he's strong. He has made it clear that he's been hurt by this, physically and emotionally. Amber Heard is insanely abusive and I hope her reputation really suffers like his did.

Absolutely, well said. I didn't notice but I was discussing this with my mom last night she said that he lost a contract for future Pirates of the Caribbean movies because of his "abusive reputation". No amount of lawsuits can recoup the losses he incurred by being kicked off of movie projects of such a great magnitude.

They might hire him back.

Bingo, you said it. I went thru this exact shit, it's terrifying how blind love can be and how someone can drive you to the brink of insanity.

I just don't understand why some women do this. Is it because they hate men? Are they sociopaths? I'll never understand.

I knew Johnny Depp was innocent, I hope Amber gets some karma.

I just don't understand why some women do this.

You've probably been held responsible for your actions your whole life. Imagine you weren't and society rewarded you for doing it. Also, many people think men don't have feelings or emotions so we don't feel bad.
