

Finally some justice for the falsely accused

July 28, 2019 | 4247 upvotes | by Seba7236

<https://i.redd.it/1tzzbxec23d31.jpg>

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

NohoTwoPointOh • 552 points • 28 July, 2019 07:13 PM

If she gets convicted, we will make sure to add her to register-her.net.

fellate-o-fish • 226 points • 28 July, 2019 08:55 PM

Would it be overly optimistic or naive of me to hope we will soon see her picture(s) all over the news just like the media did with these boys when the accusations hit?

NohoTwoPointOh • 123 points • 28 July, 2019 09:20 PM

Aaaaaaaaaaaaaabsolutely.

fellate-o-fish • 29 points • 28 July, 2019 09:51 PM

Was I supposed to hear that in Moira Brown's voice?

Because I ~~definitely~~ absolutely heard it in Moira Brown's voice.

DJ-Roukan • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 01:56 PM

Kinda want to do the same, but there is this nagging realization that these boys should not be jumping for joy...because the fucking thing should not have happened to them in the first place.

It is a disgrace what we are doing to our boys, across all cultures.

NohoTwoPointOh • 2 points • 30 July, 2019 12:39 AM

Completely agree. A lot of guys dream of going to [insert country here] for greener pastures. But the war on boys and men is like a contagion. We are seeing it in central Europe and Asia as much as Europe and the Americas...

That said, Israeli prisons sound about as fun as Mexican prisons. That's probably worth about 8 inches of the jump.

Next_Flow1 • -29 points • 28 July, 2019 09:54 PM

they were minors that didn't happen

fellate-o-fish • 37 points • 29 July, 2019 12:15 AM

If you look at literally any news story when the kids were arrested & before the real story about it all being a lie came out, you'll see a bunch of photos of the kids in custody. Also, not all of them were minors.

GreenMountainDolphin • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 05:44 PM

An American Jew published a summary of the potential complaint against the 7 men (after 5 were released) translated to Hebrew on his anti-Israel blog. He of course assumed every word in her original story was correct. He redacted her name from the summary, but left names, Passport numbers & dates of birth for all the guys. I just checked, and not a single one of the 7 was over 18 (the date for adulthood in both Cyprus & Israel). One was 15, two were 16 and the rest 17. (no, won't publish the URL). Incidentally, one local newsource said that if she's charged & convicted (one local attorney said the charge is "public nuisance"), Cyprus police will publish her name; being 19, she isn't considered a minor.

abananaa1 • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 10:56 AM

And usually courts defend going against the typical anonymity afforded to those charged with most offences, and naming people accused of e.g. rape and sexual assault on the grounds that it might lead more people to come forward to help the investigation. At least, that's how it works in the UK, with the recently released statement from the CPS (or so similar, can't remember who exactly). Why keep her anonymous, unlike those accused of rape/sexual assault? Who's to say she hasn't done this to other people, and accused them of rape? She might have, protected by anonymity, already sent people unjustly behind bars - only they know her name/who she is - or she may have attempted to falsely convict others of rape in "failed rape convictions" that weren't seen as egregious lies as this. Seems just as potentially likely to have happened, hence a need for publishing her name, as when rape/sexual assault charges are brought - except this is a politically incorrect type of charge that were told almost never happens, because its almost exclusively men that are the victims. Yet, it often happens multiply when people are convicted of lying about rape/sexual assault.

PhireFoenix • 113 points • 28 July, 2019 08:55 PM

register-her.net

i didn't know such a site existed, can't wait to see the backlash it gets for being "anti-feminist"

Chad_McHaymaker • 55 points • 28 July, 2019 09:57 PM*

That shit fit came and went.

Paul Elam created it shortly after he launched AVfM

(<https://www.avoicemen.com/mens-rights/false-rape-culture/register-her-com-goes-worldwide/>). Not sure when it made the switch to ".net," though.

The feminist peanut gallery had a predictable reaction at the time, but they seem to largely ignore it now.

TheVineyard00 • 20 points • 29 July, 2019 12:25 AM

.net is generally far cheaper, can't blame him

gprime1 points 29 July, 2019 03:01 AM* [recovered]

Not if you already own the domain; the renewal feels are typically the same for those TLDs. But sure, if somebody else is squatting on the name, .com generally commands a larger premium than .net.

juicyjerry300 • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 02:34 PM

Why? Eli5... who decided who can own what internet addresses and who do you buy them from?

gprime • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 02:41 PM

ICANN authorizes the creation of TLDs (top level domains) like .com and .info. And they grant oversight of a given TLD to a registrar. .com and .net are both controlled by a company called Verisign, and hence are priced the same. An individual who wants to buy an unclaimed domain buys it from either Verisign or an authorized registrar (like GoDaddy or NameCheap). Verisign sets a minimum price, but registrars with sales rights can charge above that, pocketing the difference for their services (eg they charge $11 and Verisign gets $7.50 of it, they keep the rest). If you register a domain, you own it for the duration of the registration period, and you have the right to renew it in perpetuity. Because you own it, you can then resell it, and you can charge whatever you want, so valuable names can sell for millions of dollars (like sex.com).

juicyjerry300 • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 02:59 PM

Oh wow, thank you. I always wondered how this process really worked. So is ICANN a private business? And where is it based? It seems like they pretty much own the internet, or are the laws limiting what they can do?

gprime • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 03:02 PM

ICANN is a non-profit that was established/spun out of the Department of Commerce. Because the US military invented the internet, the US government has always had functional control over it, though in recent years there has been an effort to internationalize the internet's oversight to US objection.

JuGGrNauT_ • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 02:06 AM

It also sounds better than ".com"

Next_Flow1 • 5 points • 28 July, 2019 11:17 PM

reddit really fucked us on changing the way to format links, on desktop there's an icon with quotation marks

Chad_McHaymaker • 5 points • 28 July, 2019 11:28 PM

That's weird. The brackets/parentheses method worked when I initially posted the comment...

Neko404 • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 10:11 PM

Maybe not that exact domain but I am pretty sure the people behind a voice for men have a site for this sort of thing.

toseawaybinghamton • 11 points • 28 July, 2019 11:01 PM

register-her.net

They all have a common look yg111 • 8 points • 29 July, 2019 12:35 PM

Why isn't her photo being posted? The innocent guys were posted everywhere

NohoTwoPointOh • 2 points • 30 July, 2019 12:41 AM

There is a petition being circulated in the UK for anonymity for the accused in cases like this. I say 'both or none'. Either no one has a right to privacy or both have this right.

coastalremedies • 6 points • 29 July, 2019 06:43 AM

Im a huge advocate of this page but lets not forget that a lot of middle eastern countries have really back track records for dealing with their rampant rape problems and corruption in the judicial systems is crazy high. I'm really hoping its not the case here but in a lot of countries women are raped and than persecuted even further by reporting it. Granted, I know nothing at all about this case

rahsoft • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 12:53 PM

I don't know if you have ever lived in the middle east or have experienced the law system there but its not so black and white in sharia law countries.

women can get prosecuted because they claim rape when they were caught committing adultery(and yes the man is prosecuted as well)

What has often happened is that the woman who is caught committing adultery will often accuse the man of rape and then their lawyers will contact feminists organisations in the west to claim oppression and persecution . They then throw in a lot of funding and campaigning to try and shame the courts into overturning and then in turn prosecute the man(who was the adulterous partner) for rape, whilst being more than happy to allow the man to be EXECUTED(which is why the evidence criteria for rape has in the past been multiple witness) whereas as today its medical evidence from a hospital.

So while its easy to claim that the middle eastern countries have a bad track records when it comes to rape , lets not forget that so do the feminists when abusing the system to claim rape with its punishment that is final and cannot retract from.

the country of Israel is also facing some pressure from feminists in persecuting men in the areas of divorce and violence(along with false accusations).

I say good luck to these boys, because they taken for a ride by a woman who decided to abuse the system and enabled by feminists(and lawyers who were too greedy to work by principles).

My knowledge of this comes from my wife who is a civil, sharia and international lawyer working in the middle east and a number of our friends who work in both activism for women rights and law in the mena region.

coastalremedies • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:15 PM

I'm pretty uninformed with this stuff and it seems like you are clearly well informed, but let's realize that we can't make full assumptions on what happened based on this article. Regardless, I do appreciate the input from somebody who has more background in this. My dad spent a couple years in Afghanistan doing PR work for the navy and I've learn bits and pieces about the culture from hearing about his experiences (even being in a war zone he says nothing but positive things about the civilians he'd met) but government / culture has a lot of flaws that affect women. But granted the Middle East is a huge place and my second hand learnings about the culture of one country likely don't apply to anything about Israel.

rahsoft • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 07:09 PM

with all due respect Afghanistan is NOT the middle east. I know a lot of American thinks so(my father is American). But its still a very different place compared to many (even compared to the middle east). and you are correct in that the middle east itself is a huge place with a lot of diversity (rather like Europe). Israel is I'm told a combination of the old middle east and the new western countries(eg America due to their strong outward looking attitude).

With regards to the men accused, we've all see this before and its becoming a common tactic for people to cry rape when its either didn't happen or its regret sex. The filming that was alleged to have been conducted is a big no no, but rape it wasn't google jemima beale to see how bad this behaviour can be register-her.net? never heard of this before. am i missing something?

AlicornGamer1 points 29 July, 2019 08:54 PM [recovered]

NohoTwoPointOh • 2 points • 30 July, 2019 12:36 AM

Not anymore, you aren't...

Belly__flop • 86 points • 28 July, 2019 08:26 PM*

Here is the link:

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-7294285/British-woman-19-said-12-Israeli-men-gang-raped-probed-false-claims.html>

Good news, hopefully she gets the book thrown at her. She nearly got away with destroying the lives of 12 innocent men.

And here is the First story.

<https://cyprus-mail.com/2019/07/17/police-investigating-napa-tourist-gang-rape/>

[deleted] • 27 points • 28 July, 2019 08:41 PM

In an ideal world she will get locked up in Cyprus for years with no way to make direct contact with the UK.

gprime1 points 29 July, 2019 03:04 AM* [recovered]

Even were that to happen, Cyprus is an EU member and first world country, so it wouldn't be especially dire like I think you're hoping.

[deleted] • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 09:50 AM

I'd imagine a prison in any country that hot would be pretty dire lol. Not sure if they'd get air conditioning.

DerpJungler • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 03:47 PM

I am from Cyprus and have been to two of our prisons (as a visitor). I can confirm that the conditions are shitty but it's not so tough as you'd think. Even for men they allow them to be pretty loose and spend a lot of time outside and hanging out with the guards.

She'll have a hard time if shes locked up here.

GreenMountainDolphin • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:04 PM

A lawyer for some of the guys who were released said the (potential) charge would be "public nuisance". Another new source (I think Reuters) said "making a false allegetation". According to a sources in Israel, the maximum penalty would be a year in jail. Here in Israel, the punishment for filing a false police complaint is 3 to 5 years in prison, which I think is more reasonable -- after all, a false complaint abuses the entire legal system. However, there are policy guidelines for Israel police NOT to pursue false complaints about sexual crimes, in order not to weaken other victims motivation to file complaints, except in exceptional cases.

toseawaybinghamton • 6 points • 28 July, 2019 11:05 PM

She already destroyed their lives... You don't forget something like this.

yg111 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 12:40 PM

So why isn't her photo being published by the media? The innocent guys were not given the same treatment

Raunaruoey • 1 point • 22 August, 2019 05:14 AM

"Guilty until proven innocent" Good job Daily Mail!

pocoid1 points 28 July, 2019 06:16 PM [recovered]

But these man will have word "rape" all their life next to their names, besides that they're innocent. That woman should have been known for lying and false accusations. But it won't happened.

mathwin • 60 points • 28 July, 2019 07:12 PM

In this case at least, probably not. The hearings in this case were all held behind closed doors because some of the men are minors. I haven't seen names of any of the parties involved published anywhere.

attackfarce • 9 points • 28 July, 2019 08:06 PM

That's because they are innocent.

mathwin • 19 points • 28 July, 2019 08:08 PM

Who's disputing that?

attackfarce • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 09:34 PM

No one, "names of parties" of the people don't need to be given away unless they're found guilty. Hence the innocent until proven guilty.

Neko404 • 17 points • 28 July, 2019 10:15 PM

I wish this was how it worked in America. Regardless of guilt your name can and will be plastered all over the place if it makes for good news.

EnIdiot • 6 points • 28 July, 2019 11:00 PM

There is a good reason for this. In places without such a press-freedom it is easier to "disappear" people without a record in the press. It is a mixed bag either way. The real solution is for the police to investigate quickly and thoroughly before making an arrest.

gprimel points 29 July, 2019 02:59 AM* [recovered]

I'm not sure that a legal issue in Cyprus is likely to follow these men back to Israel. I suppose one could worry that it would disqualify them from certain sensitive positions that involve deep background checks, which in Israel is more common than in most countries given the number of tech firms who work in the defense/cybersecurity/infosec space, but I would also imagine given the clear exoneration of these men that anybody bothered enough to do a deep dive is likely to overlook this issue. I guess only time will tell.

StardustOasis • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 12:36 PM

It already has got back to Israel:

Hey, Israeli here. While the accusation itself was in Cyprus, the whole country was raging about it. The news was covered every night with feminists and ministers claiming that it was so wrong that they bring shame upon Israel. Nobody even mentioned that it was still unclear what really happened. Pretty happy to find out the truth tbh.

Comment from /u/theomerangi

gprime • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 12:42 PM

I'm aware of the fact that it was well covered in the Israeli media, that isn't what I meant. Rather, I'm saying I don't think arrests in Cyprus are going to show up on standard background checks, or that these men, some of whom I believe have not yet been named in the Israeli press (or any press for that matter) are likely to face lasting consequences in Israel over the events in Cyprus.

NohoTwoPointOh • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 12:25 PM

A simple Google search is all one needs at this point.

gprime • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 02:54 PM

That's only partially true. Five of them have not been named publicly at all.

TheOmerAngi • 252 points • 28 July, 2019 08:34 PM

Hey, Israeli here. While the accusation itself was in Cyprus, the whole country was raging about it. The news was covered every night with feminists and ministers claiming that it was so wrong that they bring shame upon Israel. Nobody even mentioned that it was still unclear what really happened. Pretty happy to find out the truth tbh.

Consilio_et_Animis • 127 points • 28 July, 2019 09:24 PM*

Yep. Terrible.

Here's a famous case from Israel of a woman falsely accusing a taxi driver of rape on video camera. But the authorities refused to prosecute her, because: "...it may deter other women who have been raped from coming forwards"

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ahZTWBB26Cw>

This same story happens around the world.

Next_Flow1 • 25 points • 28 July, 2019 10:39 PM

cries in israeli

gprime1 points 29 July, 2019 03:08 AM* [recovered]

Israel also has a "rape by deception" law, under which a number of men (and, as you'd expect, zero women) have been prosecuted. It is so excessive in scope that one man, Eran Ben-Avraham, was convicted for having claimed to be a surgeon to a woman who went on to sleep with him.

[deleted] • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 05:50 AM

They've also prosecuted Palestinian men who slept with Israeli women, based on the allegation that they had falsely claimed to be Jewish. Never forget Israel is a fundamentally racist state.

gprime1 points 29 July, 2019 05:58 AM* [recovered]

Never forget Israel is a fundamentally racist state.

Disagree strongly with that claim. And I would further argue that while rape by deception laws should be expunged, as cases go, that is less outrageous than the one I mentioned.

[deleted] • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 06:03 AM

Well I have to admit to having an irrational bias against racism. I try to always keep an open mind, and it may well be that Palestinian are indeed untermenschen, but still, I'm not comfortable with it.

TheOmerAngi • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 07:06 AM

At least you admit it and I respect that.

realvmouse • -16 points • 28 July, 2019 10:47 PM

On principle I am absolutely in favor of charging applicable laws to false claims of rape with intent to harass.

A thought for you guys though: how many men have been vindicated not from video evidence/text/etc, but just by a woman feeling guilty and coming forward, or admitting it?

The famous story about the guy who was going to the NFL before the false rape claim that put him in jail, for example.

Keep an eye out for that-- you post a lot of false accusation stories, so go past the headlines-- how many of them were caught because the woman admitted it? (Also keep in mind that these are usually less newsworthy than "CAUGHT IN THE LIE! VIDEO REVEALS...." so many of them probably never get reported on.

If you make the penalties too severe (even if just) will those women still come forward?

istira_balegina • 11 points • 29 July, 2019 02:49 AM

You're a shill for the following reason: you are responding to an instance where there was video evidence that she lied with a comment "but muh what about where she admits she lied!?" . And that of course us your answer. Penalties for self admission should be lower, but if the proof comes from elsewhere, the penalty should be astromically high.

realvmouse • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 03:04 AM

That's an interesting solution. I'm not against that at all.

bufedad • 2 points • 29 July, 2019 06:31 AM

Brian Banks got it on tape. She didn't vindicate him. He did it himself.

fellate-o-fish • 16 points • 28 July, 2019 09:21 PM

Thank you for your perspective. What's the general temperature over there now that the story has gone a different direction? Is the outrage and coverage level similar / more / less? Is the girl's picture being spread around similarly to how the boys' pictures were?

omri21111 • 9 points • 28 July, 2019 09:25 PM

Their photos were not spread at all by media to be fair, just the leaks of the videos of what happened there, her picture as well aren't spread by the media and the coverage is pretty much the same but a bit less because the story is pretty much over

MildlySuspicious • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 12:40 PM

If the videos leaked then she's getting punished as we speak!

GreenMountainDolphin • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:07 PM

The video(s) were not published on any mainstream news channel or site, or mainstream social network. Neither previously were the suspects' details. That in itself would be a crime under Israeli law (details of underage suspects and alleged victims of sex crimes may not be published; all the 7 suspects were under 18.) The videos apparently made the rounds on non-supervised channels.

Gimme_The_Loot • 8 points • 29 July, 2019 01:58 AM

When this article was originally posted on r/news I made a comment about it that just bc she said it was rape doesn't necessarily mean it was and I got ragged on pretty hard.

<https://imgur.com/gallery/7e5gTxG>

Consilio_et_Animis • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 11:11 AM

"...the idea that a girl would go with 12 guys is a pretty big stretch" □

AQMessiah • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 05:25 AM

Hey, Cypriot here. Who was raging about what? The media against the boys? Was Cyprus seen as a malicious actor in any of this? I've been following this and heard one of the boys claim "I'm never going back there" once he was released and had assumed there was a general disdain for Cyprus and their role. It'd be a shame after the past few years of moving our countries closer together to lose that momentum.

TheOmerAngi • 4 points • 29 July, 2019 05:36 AM

Actually the rage was more against the boys, less over Cyprus or the Cyprus police... Everyone believed that the accusation were true until they were proven innocent. Even now nobody is angry at Cyprus, but vice versa - people are quite happy that the Cyprus police is charging the woman and got down to the truth.

RavenLordx • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 05:43 AM

Cyprian and Greek police are used to this bullshit from privileged western women. Thank god the authorities are not that brainwashed here yet.

DerpJungler • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 03:51 PM

I wouldn't say so. Our police are not the sharpest tools in the shed, and the feminist movement is more popular than any sort of MRA movement here. Basically, most of the men here are beta white knights. I've discussed this case with LOTS of people and most of them safely assumed that she was raped and that men are monsters.

Also, tourists having fun in Ayia Napa etc. has been the norm for many years, but not many false accusations have happened in the past tbh.

RavenLordx • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 04:11 PM

I do not have any personal experience on Cyprus, so I will take your word on that. Truth is this shit happens more often in places like mykonos, corfu or rhodes. A friend of mine that lives in corfu has told me that barely a week goes by without some bullshit claim.

DerpJungler • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 04:24 PM

Yeah thats true. Crazy night outs and sex parties are way more common in the islands you've mentioned. Ayia Napa is a religious temple compared to Mykonos lol.

GreenMountainDolphin • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:31 PM

I'm Israeli, and there was no vibe of "Cyprus as a whole is responsible" in news sources. Many of them reported that Ayia Napa's mayor has been attempting for a while to clean up the city, clamping down on the excessive parties and alcohol, and making the town more suitable for family vacations.

I've been to Cyprus multiple times, for vacations, company retreats and on a motorcycle trip when there was still a ferry. I also had Cypriot & Greek friends when I was studying in the US. On the whole, I always felt that Cyprus is almost as British as it is Greek, in the good sense, and much more British than London (a bit like rural England). It's certainly much cleaner than most large English cities (-: People here in Israel understand that beach resorts are beach resorts, and (for example) Goa in India, Ibiza in Spain and several of the Greek Aegean islands have much worse reputations (Mykonos). Ayia Napa is apparently esp. popular with teenagers because Cyprus is very close to Israel (the closest destination by air), and flights are very cheap. Accommodations are much cheaper than in Israel's own resort towns like Eilat, which are extremely expensive (NYC level prices) and family oriented.

People were also very much impressed with the Cypriot Police: Investigation seemed to be quick and thorough, careful of the suspects' rights and maintaining their privacy as minors. Lawyers both for the suspects and the woman praised the police. Most noteworthy was the fact that the police didn't give press interviews, and there were no leaks whatsoever. Israeli police would have spent at least as much time giving self-important interviews as investigating, and there would have been many leaks to journalists. Most Israelis have a very low opinion of our local Police...

Mem3G0D • 6 points • 29 July, 2019 04:02 AM

Hi! I'm Israeli too. Israel also has a law that prevents women from getting charged with rape since its the same law as the uk and described with "penetration" and women can't penetrate, right? They can get charged with sexual assault and such but it's much easier crime.

Greg_W_Allan • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 07:48 AM

<https://www.jpost.com/Israel/Womens-groups-Cancel-law-charging-women-with-rape>

NohoTwoPointOh • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 12:26 PM

Imagine that...

TheOmerAngi • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 05:56 AM

Sadly mostly true...

notsocommon_folk • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 07:36 AM

Well, you have to understand that Cyprus is not really used to these kinds of cases. Not only that, but the island is pretty alarmed because of the Serial Killer case from like one and a half month ago. This case seriously is one of the most gruesome cases ever happened in the island of Cyprus. It was such a peculiar case that they needed help from the UK into sending detectives that could help with such a case because the authorities had never tackled such a case before. Even though I support equal rights for both genders, and talk about mens rights and issues, you have to understand the place and the circumstances this whole thing takes place.

If this case was a "AmIAnAsshole" thing, then all of the parties involved are assholes. The girl for falsely accusing them of rape, which is a huge no no , and also the men, who started videotaping her without her consent, something that could be easily be shared by many people, even around the globe. So as I said, everyone is an asshole here.

peepeeandpoopooman • 41 points • 28 July, 2019 07:33 PM

The false accuser might not even be charged, yet these men might have to carry the stigma of a rape allegation for life.

ChaosOpen • 19 points • 28 July, 2019 08:06 PM

I've heard examples of that, men get released because the woman lied about the rape but they remain on the sex offenders registry.

fgrsentinel • 18 points • 28 July, 2019 08:42 PM

Not even that. Their names aren't kept confidential during the trial, so guilty or not guilty, the people that live in their area will make their lives hell just because they were accused of rape.

CRZR_ • 9 points • 28 July, 2019 11:55 PM

Male privalige amirite

5th_Law_of_Robotics • 8 points • 28 July, 2019 10:37 PM

Such is male privilege under the Patriarchy.

Tmomp • 25 points • 28 July, 2019 07:22 PM

I'm glad they're happy but wouldn't have been surprised if they were angry or furious at her or a system so sexist that she expected to get away with it.

They probably just want to get on with their lives and I hope they do, but part of me hopes they find ways to point out the system's flaws and help fix them.

The_Observer • 6 points • 28 July, 2019 09:47 PM

Thats step 2.

Adernain • 14 points • 28 July, 2019 10:09 PM

Cypriot here. This was top news in the past weeks, everyone was raging against these young men, but for many it didn't smell right. Some even saw a video they had from the intercourse and they said in comments of news articles that it was surely not rape. Today the 19 y.o. woman told the truth and she got arrested and going to appear to the court tomorrow. But the charges are minor AFAIK. Only for miss-usage of goverment resources and public disturbance if I remember correctly. Even the mayor of Agia Napa is going to sue her allong with the lawyers of the young men.

Next_Flow1 • 22 points • 28 July, 2019 09:39 PM

I live in Israel, its fucking pathetic how everyone circle jerked definitely guilty

toseawaybinghamton • 11 points • 28 July, 2019 11:06 PM

It's the same shit everywhere. The media has no morals.

Next_Flow1 • 5 points • 28 July, 2019 11:10 PM

believe the media said alleged, and pointed out they were in tears when calling their mother, I'm talking about my shit head feminist country men

toseawaybinghamton • 1 point • 28 July, 2019 11:15 PM

נו טוב

[deleted] • 9 points • 28 July, 2019 08:53 PM

I would love to see shit like this more often in terms of the law doing its job and arresting people who make false claims and not more false rape allegations

LongjumpingChance • 7 points • 28 July, 2019 10:15 PM

why are their faces shown instead of the girl????

willyj19 • 27 points • 28 July, 2019 08:39 PM

Basically she a hoe and fucked 6 of them and got caught.

amcynic • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 08:50 PM

Great news!

jawadrian • 9 points • 28 July, 2019 09:49 PM

Wait, if some of them were minors and they did have sex, wouldn't she be the rapist?

[deleted] • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 12:27 AM

Apparently, some british staying there began beating israelis who they thought were involve, is there any news about them?

Slav1605 • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 06:14 AM

Accusation stories are in all mainstream media and global. Clarifications and follow ups that don't fit the story are posted in selected few conservative outlets undergroundman646 • 5 points • 28 July, 2019 11:14 PM

The dangerous thing about this is that it makes retracting your story less likely.

I say throw the book at liars if you catch them but maybe some kindness if they chose to tell the truth in the end.

I'm just thinking about future false allegations

Someonedm • 13 points • 28 July, 2019 06:38 PM

Woah I feel so much better now, living in israel.

cake_patrol123 • 4 points • 28 July, 2019 07:29 PM

Why is this getting downvoted?

Someonedm • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 08:11 PM

Idk. I get why it got downvoted, because this comment is not really in place, but if you had to write it down it probably means I got -10 or (more? Less? It is more than 10 but less than -10 so it is very confusing) karma and I really don't know why.

cake_patrol123 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 07:22 AM

מה שלומך דובר מיינקראפט שולחן אנצ'סטמנט

Someonedm • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 12:05 PM

מה קורה... אמממ... אההה

אח שלי גיבור זה במקום

C2074579 • 2 points • 28 July, 2019 10:26 PM

Ah, the sweet sound of justice.

[deleted] • 2 points • 28 July, 2019 11:03 PM

Epic win.

aAvocado62846 • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 09:15 PM

T H O T busted

Razvedka • 2 points • 28 July, 2019 07:40 PM

Did this occur in the UK or Israel?

Someonedm • 10 points • 28 July, 2019 08:15 PM

Cyprus

Next_Flow1 • 3 points • 28 July, 2019 10:40 PM

Cyprus, its a very popular tourist destination spot here in Israel, flights there and back are cheap

blaireau69 • 6 points • 28 July, 2019 08:06 PM

No.

HNutz • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 03:32 AM

GREAT!

b-geek • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 07:32 AM

I am from Israel and from what I heard the police officer who was responsible for the case (his name was marios) done a 100% good job

majora24 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 09:11 AM

As a jew living in Israel i saw the story in the news. I thought there are no proves but then I heard of the DNA samples they had and also the teens filmed the WHOLE thing and I can say one thing, they are pieces of shit, but they are innocent pieces of shit

Dalainair • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 09:12 AM

She should be named and shamed as a brit I'm ashamed she was from here

[deleted] • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 09:50 AM

Great, the way it should work. Used to be that way till 'metoo' came.

brian_reddit_77 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 09:57 AM

More evil from the leftist, "believe all women!," man-hating western women.

[deleted] • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 09:51 PM

She wanted to get gang raped, and since they wouldn't she accused them

abananaa1 • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 10:57 AM

And usually courts defend going against the typical anonymity afforded to those charged with most offences, and naming people accused of e.g. rape and sexual assault on the grounds that it might lead more people to come forward to help the investigation. At least, that's how it works in the UK, with the recently released statement from the CPS (or so similar, can't remember who exactly). Why keep her anonymous, unlike those accused of rape/sexual assault? Who's to say she hasn't done this to other people, and accused them of rape? She might have, protected by anonymity, already sent people unjustly behind bars - only they know her name/who she is - or she may have attempted to falsely convict others of rape in "failed rape convictions" that weren't seen as egregious lies as this. Seems just as potentially likely to have happened, hence a need for publishing her name, as when rape/sexual assault charges are brought - except this is a politically incorrect type of charge that were told almost never happens, because its almost exclusively men that are the victims. Yet, it often happens multiply when people are convicted of lying about rape/sexual assault.

DarkPandaLord • 1 point • 30 July, 2019 10:35 PM

Why do I have an urge to hug all of them?

manbaby1769 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:07 AM

What are those weird hat things those 2 guys are wearing?

Mr_38 • 3 points • 29 July, 2019 06:10 AM

Yamakas they are hats used as religious head coverings by Jewish men.

Source: I'm Jewish

manbaby1769 • -1 points • 29 July, 2019 06:12 AM

So they cover their head head but uncover their dick head, any relation between those two facts?

Mr_38 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:12 AM

Nope excluding the religion

manbaby1769 • -2 points • 29 July, 2019 06:16 AM

Why do they cut their dicks?

Mr_38 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:20 AM

Mainly because the Torah says to but you can look into it yourself further.

[deleted] • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 10:34 AM

Its the first covenant with God.

Digi2112 • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 01:44 PM

Since Israel is involved, I don't believe her now.

PhireFoenix1 points 28 July, 2019 08:51 PM [recovered]

as a Muslim, this is the first time i'm happy for an Israeli, and man am i happy for them :)

livingyeet1 points 28 July, 2019 08:52 PM [recovered]

Wow this is cool

tmone • -3 points • 28 July, 2019 09:21 PM

This is the first time you are happy for a random Israeli citizen? You aren't happy for the millions of people you don't even know?

I mean, your comment is incredibly bigoted and prejudicial.

Terminal-Psychosis • -12 points • 28 July, 2019 11:51 PM

Britian's government is notoriously PRO RAPE, depending on the victim's race, and that of the accused.

They have a horrendous track record for such things.

This is not necessarily the win for men's rights it looks to be.

People that have spoken out against the government's obvious bias have been treated horribly, jailed, while the actual rape gangs walk free.

This is usually linked to Islamic gangs, but basically anyone other than british people are handled with kid gloves.

It is a sad, sad state of affairs.

This case may be different but, again, the pattern is very clear in that country. :(

basedcatholic1 points 29 July, 2019 04:18 AM [recovered]

Wouldn't be surprised if these dirty kikes got off the hook due to (((influence))).

lnewworldorder • 1 point • 29 July, 2019 06:10 AM

ThE ToLerAnT LeFT