

Looking for advice: When a woman surprises you with an approach.

I was having a quick bite to eat at a bar before meeting some guys I know. I had just come from the gym, was just wearing workout shorts and shirt. Definitely not dressed to impress in any way. I wasn't paying attention to any women, had my mind on other things.

When I was getting ready to leave, this woman walks up behind me and starts poking this spot of my shirt. It's one of those workout shirts with a dark material patch in the arm pit - allows breathing, it's darker so you don't see pit sweat, etc. She just pokes and rubs me in that spot. Surprises the shit out of me.

Then she's talking a bit - "Oh, that's a different type of material, I was wondering what that was!" After that it was a brief interaction, I just said "yeah, it's a comfortable workout shirt. I lifted before I came here for a quick bite and then I'm meeting some friends at a house nearby". She says "that's cool, I'm on my way out too, but maybe I'll see you here again sometime." Then it ended with "okay, have a good night's" type stuff, and we both walked out and went separate ways.

So here's the question - not being in a mindset ready to flirt, my mind went blank as to anything better to say. In this situation, what would you guys have said. I was replaying it in my mind and trying to think of something semi-flirty/sexual to work in there.

You already failed by not escalating straight to anal right there in the bar. She's got you firmly begged as a beta orbiter at this point. Your only shot at this point is, if you see her again, to fart in her face and just walk away smirking to demonstrate how little you care.

You should of just asked for her number "in case we don't bump into each for a while."

You are focused too much on what to say, should be focused on what to do. Action, youre not a stupid guy. You knew what was up dont overthink. As soon as she touched you-game on bro! She was shit testing you. Ignore what she said about "having to go" and ask her about her outfit. Touch her shirt and mock her. Keno. Whats her name? Anything! Get her talking is key.
