

How much do you text your plates, outside of logistics?

8 upvotes | 24 May, 2018 | by IIIIIIIIIIIIIII

Logistics game is tight, under a couple texts and I've got the meet up set. But during the week I'll get texts just to chat and I don't really wanna banter, but it doesn't seem right to just leave them hanging. So I'll send back a meme or something else that diffuses the conversation.

How much do you text your plates? How much should we text our plates?

The "text for logistics only" rule is generally targeted towards the "billy beta" type guys who will shower a girl with compliments, memes and videos over text then make ZERO effort to actually meet. It is mostly to prevent them from self inflicted wounds. You do not need to take it verbatim.

I think you're playing it just fine: If she messages you out of the blue, send back something clever/funny and leave it at that.

This right here. It doesn't matter. Some girls I never text. Some I text a lot. It's all about frame and non neediness.

That logistic rule is for the new guys who's text game is on the same level as Stevie wonders ability to shoot a gun accurately.

But If you feel like you're texting too much you probably are.

2/3 is good, you can't just forget about your sluts. I make that mistake too often still

Depends on the plate. I try to keep it only to logistics but if she texts me a meme or something I'll be reasonable in responding. Not all girls make good plates but when you find one it's astounding how they'll respect the boundaries and keep it to logistics only.

The logistics only rule is a a safety of sorts. When speaking in written format it's very easy to have your intentions misinterpreted or worse, seen for what they truly are.

If you are a master wordsmith then texting can get you ahead and develop her dependency on you.
